

PUBLIC SECTOR DESIGN-BUILD: St. Charles County Emergency Operations Center

Please join the Design-Build Institute of America St. Louis Chapter (DBIA- STL) for our breakfast program welcoming Adam Siburt with Brinkmann Constructors for a presentation and discussion on the St. Charles County Emergency Operations Center Public Design Build project in O'Fallon, MO. Learn how this unique and challenging project was procured, designed and completed using the collaborative input from several project stakeholders.

DBIA-STL believes that an integrated facilities delivery possesses fundamental advantages over traditional project delivery methods practiced in the United States and abroad. DBIA-STL strives to create awareness and demand for the Design-Build process, educate companies and individuals on opportunities for them.

Join us to learn how DBIA-STL can help you and your company representing the industry and advocating for alternative project delivery methods regionally and nationwide. Our members and frequent attendees include a diverse group including owners, developers, design professionals, contractors, suppliers, educators, municipalities, and students.
