

June Program: Healthcare Panel

As the healthcare market continues to evolve, whether with a move towards more outpatient services, micro hospitals, various clinics, or all the above, so does the need for different delivery methods in the healthcare space. Join us for a breakfast program on June 13 as Karen Shumate, chief operating officer with Lawrence Memorial Hospital, and John Luthi, construction and facilities manager with Olathe Health System, discuss their current design-build projects and the journey that led them there. The panel will be moderated by John Almeida, design and construction development director with MedDevelopment, who will also provide his insights into this shift.
